Maps Advancing Against Allies In India Jungle

Attempt To Cut American Lines

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

NEW DELHI, April 7 (AP)—Japanese invasion troops in India have been westward across the Imphal-Kohima highway in the heart of the Allied defense zone and are being hotly engaged in the jungles about fifty miles east of the Ben-ghal-Assam railway, American-operated supply lifeline for Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's forces in northern Burma, it was announced today.

Report Rail Line Menaced

A Berlin broadcast of Tokyo dispatches declared that Japanese troops were "menacing" the rail line from an untested distance, and said confidently that when it was cut the collapse of the Allied campaign in North Burma would become inevitable. A Japanese agency dispatch recorded by Reuters said Japanese troops were within six miles of Imphal from the east.

It had been known since Sunday that the invaders had installed tanks on the sixty-mile Imphal-Kohima road, completely isolating the big Allied base at Imphal exposed by air, but today's communication from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters gave the first indication that this enemy column had pressed on westward.

The vital Allied railway line at which the entire Japanese invasion aimed primarily is only about thirty-five miles from the Imphal-Kohima forces which several days ago were reported pressing through the Naga hills north of Kohima toward the railroad.

Repulse Jap Attacks

British and Indian troops defending Imphal itself against Japanese formations pressing in from the east and south at the edge of the Manipur plain threw back several small enemy attacks yesterday, Mountbatten's communiqué announced. The Seventeenth Indian Division, withdrawing up the road from Tiddim to aid in the defense of Imphal, was reported intact with only to ninety per cent of its transport saved.

Making a fighting withdrawal in the besieged Imphal along with the British Indian division are seventy members of an American field service ambulance unit that has been fighting with the British in the Tiddim area. A second unit of fifty is withdrawing under intense fire from the Tamu area southwest of Imphal. Nine ambulances had been hit at Imphal at latest report, but at least sixteen other vehicles were cut off and believed lost.

A Berlin broadcast of Tokyo dispatches said five powerful Japanese columns were closing in on Imphal and that the defenders were holding in reinforcements from Calcutta and elsewhere, presumably by air. "However, there's little chance of success for the enemy in the face of the surging advance of Japanese forces," the broadcast asserted.

Sergeant Finds Lots Of Good in Nation

WOOSTER, O., April 7 (AP)—Technical Sgt. Paul Waggoner, of nearby Easton is convinced there's lots of good in the nation which he is fighting.

Waggoner was flown here by the army from an American air force base in India, because his 22-year-old wife, Marjorie, is critically ill. Doctors hold little hope for her recovery.

The radio technician spent two hours with Mrs. Waggoner in her hospital room Wednesday — the couple's second wedding anniversary. "There's lots of good in a country whose army will take the trouble to bring one of its soldiers half way around the world to be with his wife during her last few days on earth," commented the sergeant.

Earl Browder, Communist Leader, Urges Re-Election of Roosevelt

DETROIT, April 7 (AP)—Communist Leader Earl Browder, urging re-election of President Roosevelt, called tonight for a "people's leadership" in the campaign so that, he said, "partnership harmful to national unity would be eliminated."

"The people," Browder said in a radio talk, "must conduct the campaign for Roosevelt. It must be a non-partisan campaign. It must be a campaign for national unity, to win the war, and to realize the perspective given the world at the Tehran conference of a long-time peace and prosperity for the world."

VICTORY SMILE

THIS PICTURE of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of N. Y. was made after he received news of the Wisconsin primary, which gave him most of the state's delegates to the Republican national convention and resulted in Wendell L. Willkie's withdrawal from the presidential race. He offered no comment.

Tough Invasion Coming, Asserts General Bradley

By JAMES F. KING

WITH AN AMERICAN INFANTRY DIVISION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, April 7 (AP)—When the Americans storm Adolf Hitler's ramparts from the west they will not wage into a blood-bath but will go "in there punching backed by massed naval fire and air power."

American infantry officers got this straight from Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who told them today that assailing the Atlantic wall will be tough and "the greatest show on earth" — but asserted "this stuff about tremendous losses is tommyrot."

"Some of you won't come back," he said, "but it will be very few."

"In the Tunisian campaign we lost only an average of three or four men to 1,000 and certainly seeing a show like this ought to be worth the chance."

Gen. Bradley told the men that they would have air protection day and night and "naval gunfire that will surprise you. I have no fear of its outcome."

The infantrymen were warned that the Germans not only were tough but were likely to "play dirty" and Gen. Bradley urged the men not to trust the Germans "very far. Sometimes they will come out waving white flags and then open fire on you."

Gen. Bradley called for aggressiveness from the officers saying "both England and the United States are behind you in this fight and I know lots of people who would give their shirts to be in it."

Drilling for Oil Planned in Maryland

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 7 (AP)—More than 200,000 acres of land have been leased in Worcester and Worcester counties by oil companies for large-scale exploration, Dr. J. T. Singewald, Jr., director of the Maryland Department of Geology, Mines and Water Resources, disclosed today.

In addition to the Ohio Oil Company, which made its initial operations on the Eastern Shore last fall, the Pure Oil Company, the Sun Oil Company and Sinclair Oil Company have taken leases on Maryland land, Dr. Singewald reported.

Browder said the campaign could not be left in the hands of the "old political machines" because the machines, he said, "know only the old traditional methods of loud-mouthed partisanship which rouses and sharpens all old alignments and prejudices and further sharpens the division in the country."

"The people," Browder said, "must organize their forces to take charge of the campaign themselves, reaching across former partisan lines of division to weld a unit that will stand above all old feuds x x x or anything else that stands in the way of national unity."

Red Army Traps 25,000 Germans In Odessa Area

Six Nazi Divisions Facing Annihilation

By TOM YARBROUGH

LONDON, April 7 (AP)—The Red army has sprung still another trap on the remnants of five or six German divisions, perhaps 25,000 to 50,000 men, northwest of Odessa, and in a swift investment of the prize Black sea port has captured Novaya-Dafinovka, only ten miles to the northeast, Moscow announced tonight.

Rolling through sixty towns and villages in a semi-circle around the big port the Russians also seized Karlat, seventeen miles northwest of Odessa, putting the Red army only fifteen miles from the Odessa-Ovidiopol railway—the last German land escape route to Rumania.

Large Force In Danger

Belayevka, twenty-three miles west of Odessa on the marshes above the Dniester river estuary, also fell to the attacking Russians, who were at that point only twenty miles north of the ferry terminus of Ovidiopol and smashing ahead in an effort to bottle up thousands of Germans and Rumanians inside Odessa.

The latest Russian trap was created north of Razdelnaya, forty miles northwest of Odessa, by units which had cut the last major rail escape route into Rumania at Razdelnaya.

Moscow's bulletin said more than 5,000 of the encircled Germans already had been killed and more than 1,000 captured in two days fighting, and the remainder were "being wiped out." Sixty-four guns and twenty-four tanks also were seized in that area, said the broadcast, according to the Soviet monitor.

Kill 4,000 More

In the other trap area west of Skala, in the southwestern corner of the Ukraine, the Russians again repulsed German attempts to break out to the west, killing 4,000 enemy troops during Thursday alone and capturing 1,400 trucks, five junks, fifty-two transport planes which the enemy had been using to rescue German officers, seventeen guns, and seven tanks, Moscow said.

The remnants of fifteen German divisions are surrounded in the Skala sector, which is just above the Middle Dniester river.

Southwest of Tarnopol in former Poland the Russian first army troops also beat down attacks by large forces of enemy infantry and tanks "which tried to break through to aid the encircled grouping" at Tarnopol, the bulletin said.

Tarnopol's German garrison has been surrounded since March 26, and in violent street fighting the Russians have captured most of the town.

In Bessarabia the Russian Second Army in a two-day fight toppled the district center of Orhei (Ordeyev), only twenty miles north of Kishinev, provincial capital, the communiqué said, terming the captured city "an important stronghold in German defenses at the approaches to Kishinev."

Missing Bracelet In Cow's Stomach

WOLBACH, Nebr., April 7 (AP)—The identification bracelet which Bette Lou Noonan lost last Christmas came back in the mail today, in a letter from John F. Moser, employee in the cattle slaughtering division of the Campbell Soup packing plant at Kansas City.

"We found a bracelet bearing your name and address inside a cow's stomach," Moser wrote. "We hope the wearer wasn't included in the cow's diet."

Aluminum Company Workers Strike

CANONSBURG, Pa., April 7 (AP)—Seven hundred members of the CIO-Peoples Union went on strike today at the plant of the Aluminum Company of America here.

A spokesman for the company said no outstanding grievance was pending and that the workers had submitted no demands. A union spokesman said the men went out because their work had been cut to three or four days a week.

Runaway Cow Likes Pennsylvania Lines

PHILADELPHIA, April 7 (AP)—A cow that fled from a slaughterhouse might have escaped if she hadn't had a one-track mind.

First she was reported on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Sixth st.; then on the same line at Second st.; so a pair of radio patrolmen who were chasing her sped a few blocks to the next intersection and captured the fugitive—still on the Penn.

Defective Plane Engines Blamed On 3 Officers

Court-martial Brings Out Serious Charge

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI, April 7 (AP)—Testimony that eight of twelve Wright airplane engines torn down and rechecked on orders of Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson had "dangerous defects" which might have caused failure in flight came today at the court-martial of three AAF officers charged with neglect of duty and conspiracy.

The witness who said the twelve were selected "at random" from 100 returned by the AAF from a Columbus, O., depot last September, was Melvin L. Hiller, a chunky army inspector at the Lockheed plant of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation.

Promises Full Report

He added that his crew of inspectors had just finished reassembling the engines and promised to bring in a summary of data on the remaining eighty-eight next week, when court resumes after spending tomorrow visiting the plant.

The accused officers, charged in connection with what the government contends was inspection malpractice at the plant, are Lt. Col. Frank C. Greulich of Detroit, former chief inspector for the AAF materiel command; Maj. Walter Ryan, former inspection officer for the fourteen-state central district at Detroit; and Maj. William Bruckmann, of Cincinnati, former AAF inspector in the plant.

Hiller told the eleven-member court that the 100 engines had been shipped from Lockheed between Jan. 26 and April 9, 1943. The latter date was a week after the Truman War production committee held a hearing here on complaints about engines produced at the Lockheed plant.

"Dangerous" Defects

The defects on the eight which Hiller described as "dangerous" on questioning by Maj. Henry C. Claussen, trial judge advocate, ranged from cracked master-rods bearings installed despite previous rejection, to cylinder flaws, disintegrating bushing and "soft" piston rings, he said.

The other four engines, he added, had minor defects and all twelve showed evidence of mutilation through careless assembly and handling of tools.

Hiller insisted when questioned by Col. Charles Chapman of the court that his inspection was "no more searching than production inspection should have been," and said many parts lacked stamped indication that they had been factory-inspected.

"Skoll Techer" Asks For Extra Gas

PITTSBURG, Kas., April 7 (AP)—Applying to the Crawford county ration board for extra gasoline, a woman wrote that she needed the fuel because she was "teching skoll."

But the board turned down the request, deciding if she were a "skoll techer" she shouldn't be.

Gas Production Soars

HAMMOND, Ind., April 7 (AP)—Production of 100 octane gasoline is nearly nine times the output at the time of Pearl Harbor and within a few months will be stepped up to twelve times as much, W. W. Vandever, director in charge of petroleum administration for war in district two, declared tonight.

Captain Don S. Gentile Claims Record of 27 Nazi Planes Downed

By GLADWIN HILL

A UNITED STATES FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, April 7 (AP)—Capt. Don S. Gentile, 23-year-old Mustang pilot from Piqua, O., today claimed twenty-seven enemy planes destroyed, of which at least eight were on the ground, and if his claim is allowed he will take undisputed leadership among American aces in the European theater of operations.

In the first World War Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker destroyed twenty-six enemy aircraft, a figure equaled by two marine fliers in this war. In all three cases the records included only aircraft shot down and not planes destroyed on the ground.

Grounded Planes Included

Washington has reported that only planes destroyed in the air count in the "ace" competition, but a public relations officer of the Eighth Fighter Command said that planes destroyed on the ground are credited to fighter pilots in the European theater of operations and included in the victory scores.

It was recalled that there have been numerous army press releases in the European theater of operations describing planes destroyed

NAZI PLANE FACTORY DEMOLISHED BY ALLIED RAIDS

SCENES LIKE THIS are reported to be common throughout Germany and France, where raids by the United States Eighth Air Force and the R. A. F. have been systematically smashing Nazi plane production. This photo is from a captured German film and only now released by the United States authorities.

Important Birthday At White House

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—An important birthday was observed at the White House today—it was No. 4 for Fala, the president's scottie.

White House officials said Fala probably would get an extra bone. He received photographers on the back lawn of the mansion and they reported he wasn't much interested in a lavish white birthday cake with lavender trimmings and yellow roses and four candles on top.

Heavy Bombers Raid Wake Island

UNITED STATES FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, April 7 (AP)—Army heavy bombers hit Wake Island, 2,300 miles west of here, with forty-four tons of bombs Wednesday night, setting off heavy explosions in enemy storage areas and in an aircraft repair base.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced the raid today, the second this week, and also reported strikes the same day by American planes against Ponape, in the Caroline Islands, and four Japanese positions in the Marshall Islands. All planes returned from these operations.

The attack on Wake was the eighteenth since that former American island was captured early in the war by a force of Japanese that overpowered a small but heroic marine garrison.

Mitchell medium bombers of the Seventh AAF battered Ponape, starting a large fire on one of its airfields. It was the fifth consecutive daily attack for Ponape, and the twenty-ninth of the war.

Scared of Army, Man Leaps from Train

PHILADELPHIA, April 7 (AP)—A man described as "scared to death of the army" was held in $10,000 bail for a psychiatric examination today, after he leaped from a train taking him to an induction center at New Cumberland, Pa.

Leonard Arrera, 25, refused to speak when arraigned before United States Commissioner Norman J. Griffin on a charge of failing to report for induction, but other witnesses testified Arrera collapsed several times before he was taken to the train with thirty-eight other draftees yesterday.

Pennsylvania Railroad detectives picked up Arrera last night, twenty miles outside Philadelphia. He told them he hurt his ankle jumping from the train.

"This man seems literally scared to death of the army," said Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Kallick. "It may be a sham or it may be real. I suggest he be held in substantial bail pending examination by a psychiatrist."

Carrier Task Forces Report Major Victory

160 to 214 Enemy Planes Shot Down

By REMBERT JAMES

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, April 7 (AP)—Unchallenged by the Japanese fleet, strong American aircraft carrier task forces wreaked havoc for three days less than 600 miles from the Philippines, sinking twenty-eight enemy ships, damaging eighteen, bagging 160 to 214 planes and spreading destruction over the Palau islands and adjacent bases. It was disclosed today.

The hosts of American warships operating more than 4,500 miles southwest of Pearl Harbor emerged unscathed and only twenty-five of the hundreds of attacking carrier planes were lost. Eighteen fliers perished.

Fail To Find Fleet

Failing as at Truk and in the Marianas in February, task force assaults to draw out Nippon's navy, Admiral Richard A. Spruance's fleet had to be contented with two destroyers and "one unidentified combat ship" among the vessels sunk. The remainder largely were cargo ships and oilers.

But a big Japanese battleship was spotted the night of March 25, just before the three-day fleet operation opened, fleeing the Palau region in the Western Carolinas. The intercepting submarine rammed home a torpedo which caused "considerable damage." The battleship, however, limped away.

U. S. Ships Not Damaged

"There was no damage to our surface ships," today's communiqué said. The Japanese radio had claimed two cruisers sunk, a battleship and at least two aircraft carriers damaged.

Adm. W. Chester Nimitz, in breaking a protective radio silence of more than a week, disclosed that the Palau, known as Japan's Singapore, bore the brunt of the attack of carrier planes but that Yap, Ulithi and Woleai also were hit in operations extending through March 29, 30 and 31.

At Palau on the first two days twenty-five ships were sunk. The other three enemy ships definitely sunk were small ones which fell victim to ships gunfire at sea.

18 Ships Damaged

All eighteen ships damaged, including the battleship, were in the Palau sector, 530 miles east of the Philippines.

In addition, several small ships were sunk at Ulithi.

More than sixty buildings were wiped out at Palau, including twenty warehouses, hangars, docks and a phosphate plant were among facilities damaged.

The bulk of the planes were encountered over the Palau, where ninety-three were shot out of the sky, twenty-nine others probably were downed, thirty-nine wiped out on the ground and twenty others probably.

The Palau were hit March 29 and 30; Yap and Ulithi March 30 and 30; Woleai, about midway between Palau and Truk, on March 31.

Bricker Would Keep War-Won Bases

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP)—Looking ahead to the postwar era, Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio asserted today the government should encourage private enterprise and should keep war-won bases around the world to aid the nation's defense and trade.

The Ohioan, on his way to the West coast in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, defined his views in speeches before the Union League and Executives Clubs.

He also told newsmen he did not believe that Wendell Willkie or any Republican voters would step out of the party because Willkie gave up his bid for the top place on the Republican national ticket.

Registration of 'Teen Age Negroes In Georgia May Bring Test of Law

BRUNSWICK, Ga., April 7 (AP)—A group of thirty "teen-age negro students were registered as voters today in what was seen as a possible test of state Democratic party regulations restricting Georgia's all-important primary voting to white persons.

The students, accompanied by a teacher, visited the county tax office in a group, exercising a right conferred on 18-year-olds by Georgia's new election law. The office reported a number of other negroes had registered and paid back poll taxes during the week following a decision by the United States Supreme Court that negroes may vote in the Texas Democratic primary.

Other Georgia cities reported little negro interest in registering and other southern states found negroes making no precipitate move to claim test of state Democratic party regulations restricting Georgia's all-important primary voting to white persons.

Anthracite Pact Approved by Board

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—The War Labor Board announced today unanimous approval of the anthracite wage agreement, probably opening the way to early termination of government administration of the Pennsylvania hard coal mines. The terms are substantially those of the agreement between Secretary Tokes and John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, under which the mines have been operating since last November 3.

The board provided, however, that the further approval of Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson would be necessary if the operators asked further price relief as a result of the contract.

Isolation Tag Not an Issue

OUR COLUMNISTS point out in their contributions today that the Wisconsin primary election and Willkie's withdrawal as a candidate in consequence prove that isolationism as an issue is not tenable with respect to Republican candidates. That is what this newspaper has repeatedly declared. It has contended all along that any effort to hang an isolationist tag upon Republicans as such is absurd, unless at the same time the same tag is attached to the Democrats.

The plain reason is, of course, that everybody in this country, from the president down, sought by every means to keep out of this destructive war if it were possible and honorable to do so. But Pearl Harbor changed the viewpoint of the whole country, instantaneously, and the change affected Democrats as well as Republicans and all others of whatever political leanings.

The New Deal politicians have persistently and subdulously sought to hang the tag upon Republicans and, as the News once before observed, to make it appear that they are some sort of reptilians endowed by nature with the propensity to draw into holes and pull the holes in after them. The purpose has been obvious, it being just another instance of the utilization of smearing tactics. The New Deal contribution to the Willkie candidacy lost no opportunity to use this against the opposition to him.

Several months ago—last August, to be exact—the Saturday Evening Post pointed out in an editorial what this newspaper had frequently noted, that there is no historic reason for this deceptive labeling and that isolationism is not the true heritage of the Republican party but that, in fact, its history shows exactly the opposite. It is of interest now to refer to that utterance.

There was John Hay who, as a Republican secretary of state, got us into China by proclaiming the Open-Door policy, the Post noted. There were President Hoover, backed by Secretary of State Stimson, who nailed it down by refusing to recognize the puppet government in Manchuria; President Harding, supported by Charles Evans Hughes, who summoned the Washington disarmament conference as Japan was beginning to feel its oats; President McKinley, who got us into the Pacific by taking the Philippines; two presidents who did their best to secure American adherence to a world court—all Republicans. The treaties of 1922, it was reminded, were foreign commitments by the United States.

It is the Democratic party that once assailed imperialism and has now faced about; it is the same party that once fought for states' rights and is now doing its utmost to destroy them; it is the same party that now, lacking a definite foreign policy, attempts to dictate the policy of the Republican party; it is the same party that opposed intervention when this Second World War was started, and, if it changed its attitude then held by virtue of war developments, so also did other Americans for the same reason, particularly after Pearl Harbor—and any effort thus to separate sheep from goats is historically libelous, unjust and unfounded.

"It is our hunch," said the Post, "that, with the young and vivid characters now pressing for attention in the Republican party, any effort to lash the party into outworn isolationism, which represents neither Republican theory nor practice over the national history, will find few customers."

And that effort found very few customers among the Wisconsin voters this week.

Our Foreign Policy And a Promise

COMMENTING upon the wishy-washy and vacuous foreign policy of the United States, the New York Herald Tribune points to the disparity obtaining as to the position of Russia. Stalin and Molotov have repeatedly moved with concrete exactness in various matters, while this country has remained silent and inactive.

"American foreign policy," says the Herald Tribune, "has consistently failed to employ any such practical, definite approach to the great issues with which we must deal. Throughout the war the Russians have repeatedly made very clear what they wanted, whom they supported and what they intended to do in each given case; the Americans—and, to a lesser extent, the British, who find themselves in part the prisoners of the American elusive-ness—have allowed everything to dissolve into a vague mist of future hopes, fears and postponement. The first result has been that Russia has done more in practice to shape the European future than either of the two other great Allies. She already speaks with an authority which neither Great Britain nor the United States can exert. The second result has been merely to confuse and exacerbate various serious practical issues without bringing to them any effective means of solution.

"To this newspaper it seems that the time for specific decision on several immediate issues has come." (These are enumerated as the matter of Russia's western border; the status of the De Gaulle committee; Italy and the problems in Yugoslavia and Greece; and in addressing the Rumanians, the Hungarians and the Germans themselves, all declared to be calling urgently for decisions.)

Washington has promised three important speeches within the next two weeks on the subject of foreign policy by the secretary of state, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee and the leading administration spokesman on the Foreign Affairs committee of the House. Let it be hoped these expositions will be more to the point than the generalities with which we are now so wearisomely familiar.

An Incentive To Gird For the Day of Peace

COMETH NOW EASTER in the dark hour of war the world over. It is as it was in the beginning. It was dark when Mary Magdalene saw the stone taken away from the sepulcher, and dark indeed had it been since the crucifixion. But those of stout heart and bright faith stood through the dark. They were ready when Mary Magdalene said the Lord had been taken away out of the sepulcher. For the prophet had so foretold.

And so it is and ever shall be. It is in the nature of the firmament and the waters and the air and all things living. They have, as they were given in the beginning, the light that is called day and the darkness that is called night.

But in the spirit of man, in the greatness of his faith, the day grows long as the joyous festival of Easter is celebrated, and the darkness withers in the same measure, for the total is constant.

On Easter, men of all faiths take up themselves from the inner cleansing of the Lenten season and lift their faces to the light. In the world about them it is so today more than common. For the princes of evil have ridden out from their benighted countries, whence they have scourged the truth, to enfold all the world in night as a habit.

But defending the day and the right, and man at the full stature of his enlightenment, are the men of God. By way of the firmament and the waters and the air, the fervor of their righteousness speeds them to stay the enemies of God, to smite them down and to entomb them in their own wickedness.

This Easter, as men of good will the world over lift their faces to the light that follows the darkness, it is meet and dutiful to gird also more greatly for the trials of earth and the hastening toward the day of which it is writ there shall be peace then and evermore.

The Old Masculine Superiority

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A man and a woman sitting on a train. . . She's working at a crossword puzzle. He's doing nothing. She works away writing letters in little squares, now puzzled, now triumphant—you know how people are when they're working one of those things. . . But finally she's "stuck." There's a long word she doesn't know, can't guess, can't work out through clues from adjacent letters. . . And after an interval she appeals to her husband for help.

Sure he'll help. He takes the paper, squares his shoulders, settles into the seat, studies the puzzle, knits his brow, thinks, scowls, and discovers the right word! . . . He smiles, writes it in, is proud of himself. . . But does he then give the paper back to the lady? Not so you can notice it. It's his now, by right of finding "that right word." He keeps it, continues with the puzzle, plugs ahead. . . At last he, too, is stumped. He can't think of a ten-letter word for "domestic tranquility." He scratches his left ear, pushes his hat back, grunts, growls, looks around disgustedly, doesn't ask HER for help, but GIVES UP.

Strips the paper apart, gives her the page with the crossword puzzle on it, settles down into the sports sections and wants nothing said about HIS failure. She says nothing, but her eyes twinkle as she resumes work on the puzzle.

It has happened before and will happen again. She knows that but doesn't mind. She is amused by the man. Knows him through and through. Looks up to him but also looks down upon him at other times, tenderly, understandingly, as though he were a petulant child.

She recognizes the old Masculine Superiority when she sees it. Every woman does. . . It's the one thing they all know. Even little girls learn it soon and take that attitude toward boasting little boys. It's a matter of observation and understanding, that's all. And that's what they mean when they say to each other: "Isn't that just like a man?"

Certainly it is. Any man will admit it if you catch him in the right mood. And any man will deny it hotly if you try to pin him down at the wrong moment. . . Don't I know!

Spanking of Party By Willkie Is Seen As His Undoing

By MARK SULLIVAN

For the defeat of Mr. Wendell L. Willkie in Wisconsin, and his subsequent retirement from the Republican presidential race, there are a number of reasons. One kind has to do with ideas and principles. The other kind has to do with the so-to-speak, mechanics of politics—which are much the same as the mechanics of any kind of organization into which men group themselves. The reasons having to do with ideas and principles are more important. But the reasons having to do with political mechanics are simpler to understand.

Students of politics, sufficiently equipped with knowledge of political history, might have foreseen Mr. Willkie's failure in a despatch sent from Wisconsin March 24, by an exceptionally penetrating newspaper correspondent covering Mr. Willkie's campaign tour. The correspondent was Mr. Dewey L. Fleming, of the Baltimore Sun. Part of Mr. Fleming's despatch, here condensed, read:

"It is small wonder if Wisconsin and the whole of the United States are mystified by the kind of campaign Wendell L. Willkie is waging. . . He has spent about seventy-five per cent of his time spanking the Republican party—with a twenty-five per cent expenditure of time in denunciation of the Democratic administration at Washington. 'Why?' asks Wisconsin. 'Why?' asks the country."

Voters Chilled

As political strategy, this course of Mr. Willkie mystified and chilled Republican voters well disposed toward him. Others, it irritated and repelled. To criticize an organization harshly, and at the same time ask the organization to make the critic its head, is a perilous program in any kind of organization, from a political party to a high school fraternity. The rule works even in an association of two persons. Romeo Willkie was saying to Juliet GOP:

"Your features are homely, your hair is stringy, your figure is unshapely—you're a mess. But I ask you to marry me. I'll streamline your features, give you a new hair-do, and teach you a new posture—I'll make you over." The lady was not favorably impressed.

Mr. Willkie ought to have known it would not work. He is a thorough student of American political history—and he must be familiar with what Theodore Roosevelt attempted with the Republican party in 1912.

Cases Identical

That Roosevelt case and Mr. Willkie's are practically identical. Roosevelt demanded that the Republican party adopt drastic reforms which he proposed, including recall of judicial decisions—and at the same time demanded that the party make him its presidential candidate. The party didn't.

Allied to this is another phase of Mr. Willkie's position which worked against him. Mr. Willkie was a reformer calling upon the Republican party to abandon old policies and adopt new ones, including internationalism. What resulted is familiar history in many fields, including some far removed from politics. The organization adopts the reforms or parts of them—but chooses some other leader to carry them out. The original proposer of the reforms is unconsciously remembered as one associated with a disappointing experience of contention and upset.

Handicaps Accentuated
These handicaps to Mr. Willkie were accentuated by his personal political history. He had been a Democrat until a few years ago. This befogged some Republican voters. What they wanted in their nominee for the presidency was a symbol of utter contrast with Mr. Roosevelt. As respects many policies, Mr. Willkie is a contrast. But the symbolism of contrast was marred somewhat by his former membership in the same party as Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Willkie's friends felt that objecting based on his former membership in the Democratic party was cured by his having had the Republican nomination in 1940—that this made him a sufficiently orthodox Republican. But Mr. Willkie, in his recent campaign for the Republican nomination, revived the disquiet of Republican voters about his orthodoxy by what was pointed out about his speeches in Wisconsin—that seventy-five per cent of them were criticisms of the Republican party, only twenty-five per cent criticisms of the Democratic party. This course was a tribute to Mr. Willkie's candor—but accounted in large part for what happened.

The slogan, "Who Wants Willkie?" generally went unanswered. Without plausible objection, also, the withering score of the Dewey victory, followed by Willkie's withdrawal from the race, was accepted everywhere on high as meaning Dewey will be nominated, without any dangerous intra-party struggle, on the first or second ballot.

Utterances Damaging
But the complete sinking of a popular national figure needs more explanation than this. True, his personal popularity had been impaired by his utterances and tactics. His remark, only half explained, "that one of his 1940 utterances was only 'campaign oratory'" obviously discouraged some support.

More important perhaps, he refused to support whoever is to be nominated by his own party, and his whole method suggested he was at least equally strong against his Republican opponents as against Roosevelt, if not more so.

Even so, all these facts seem to fall short of the complete significance of the defeat of a national figure who made twenty-three speeches through a state in which no one else was talking, and then ran last. It seems irrefutable to me that Willkie just had nothing interesting to sell. Note the light vote.

The people these days are thinking and talking primarily about the conduct of the war, the confusing steps taken by leading world statesmen and what kind of peace we can get out of this confused situation. They are more concerned with taxes for instance than with future social dignity because taxes hit them now. Time passed him by.

Country Changes
The country has changed since the early days of the war when the difficulties of applying even the Four Freedoms to Russia, Poland, et al., were not yet apparent to the people. In short, this is a failure not alone of Willkie, but for the whole thin garment of false liberalism that his vociferous left-wing followers in New York tried to drape around him.

They tried, for instance, to divide the country into two camps, saying they were the internationalist liberals, and everyone else was an isolationist.

Why should a father be penalized because usually through self-sacrifice and stunting the younger children, he manages to put a son or daughter through college, thereby making a more useful citizen of him?

Present law, which holds that any child past 18 no longer is a dependent, regardless of his economic status, has been a gross injustice. A boy or girl in college, although he or she may be more than 18, usually is more costly to parents than young children.

Isolationist Division Proves Flop as Issue, Mallon Says in Evaluating Willkie Defeat

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Dewey people suspected in advance Mr. Willkie might get as many as twenty delegates in Wisconsin.

The Republican leaders here conceded their "bad boy" generally from ten to fourteen. Even the Bricker groups, with the best line on (with the result) figured at least two delegates, probably four.

When Willkie got none and ran fourth behind Dewey, Stassen and MacArthur, who were not even running, the surprise was a little more than anyone could adequately explain.

Comments on the leaders here naturally were mostly based at this most inominous defeat of modern political history. Inasmuch as Willkie claimed he was a candidate of the people against the bosses, the common rejoinder now is that he apparently has more bosses for him than people.

The slogan, "Who Wants Willkie?" generally went unanswered. Without plausible objection, also, the withering score of the Dewey victory, followed by Willkie's withdrawal from the race, was accepted everywhere on high as meaning Dewey will be nominated, without any dangerous intra-party struggle, on the first or second ballot.

Wisconsin Voting No Isolation Test, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Has the election of President Roosevelt a fourth term brought closer realization by the withdrawal of Wendell Willkie from the Republican race?

Some observers here think so. Others believe that the prestige of the Dewey candidacy has been enhanced to the point where he may win the ultimate victory in November.

The basis for the assumption that Mr. Roosevelt's chances have been improved is that the Republican party is split between an isolationist and internationalist point of view and that the independent voters of the country, most of whom do not vote in Republican primaries, will be inclined to vote against Mr. Roosevelt rather than take a chance on a middle-of-the-road candidate who is not forthcoming about international policy but attempts to appease both wings of the Republican party at the same time.

No Isolationist Write-Off

Any attempt to write off Dewey as an isolationist is not justifying the basis of the Wisconsin vote. It is true that the Dewey delegates were known as isolationists to many voters, and it is also true that Dewey himself in 1940 made speeches of an isolationist flavor when he entered Wisconsin. But it is also true that the New York governor did not select the Wisconsin delegates asked that his name not be used that primary.

Considerable mystery attaches to the readiness of Willkie to make Wisconsin a final test of his strength. Anyone with a knowledge of Wisconsin's political makeup would have said that this was the last place for an outspoken international policy man to seek delegates. Wisconsin is wholeheartedly in the war now but before Pearl Harbor was considered a strongly isolationist electorate.

Situation Clarified

Willkie's withdrawal accelerated many weeks the Republican situation and in a sense clarifies the issue. It puts Governor Dewey on the spot. He is out in front. He must choose between the isolationist and international co-operation wings of the party. If he tries to carry on both shoulders he will become a straddler in the eyes of the independent voters. If he appears to be closer to the Willkie viewpoint than the isolationist viewpoint, he will virtually assure his own election.

Many Republicans of the conservative school have looked upon Willkie as a long figure with little influence. This has been proved. Wisconsin is a four-cornered party. They have scorned him as a Democrat—as if Democratic voters were no longer important in a country in which the majority vote three times in succession voted Democratic. These Republicans have regarded it as important to drive Willkie out of the Republican party, little realizing that it is Willkie following among the independent voters that has been at stake.

Conversion Necessary

Where will that Willkie follow go? If the Republican managers are counting only on corraling Republican votes next time, the 1944 election is as good as lost for them. They must convert many former Democrats, and among these are millions of independent-minded.

The Democratic managers are not slow to take advantage of the Willkie situation. The independent will want to know where Dewey stands. If he keeps silence till the convention and confines himself to generalities thereafter, an international crisis will arise next summer. The other nations of the world wonder about America's policy after the elections. Will Russia be less co-operation? Will the Lend-Lease agreement be abrogated? Will China get continued support? Or will the strategy of the war be changed and the plans for international co-operation afterward?

More along the lines of the Roosevelt-Hull policies than along the lines of the Republican ideas of 1920 when Harding succeeded Wilson?

Influence Like Bryan's
The Wisconsin election is in a sense a break for the Democrats side because it raises the issue earlier than it might otherwise have been raised. Willkie will continue to be outspoken. His influence may be like that of William Jennings Bryan who when not a candidate had a greater hold on the voters than when he was running for office. He was always opposed by the regulars but nevertheless he influenced public opinion and his party.

Mr. Willkie did make a mistake—he should have known that to make speeches saying exactly what he thought about current issues is a cardinal mistake inside the Republican party and to take a definite position on world affairs was very risky, indeed. But he didn't make a mistake in following his convictions and expressing his convictions politically. Sometimes it is important to lose an election contest to win a cause.

Unique Service Is Inaugurated At St. Mark's

Living Flame of Prayer for Service Personnel Will Be Held

A "prayer chest" and a "prayer candle" were dedicated by the Rev. Alfred L. Creager, pastor of St. Mark's Reformed church, at the Memorial service held at the Maundy Thursday Communion service.

The small chest, constructed of a gold finished metal and containing the names of anyone in the armed service or any of the auxiliaries, will be placed on the altar, and the candle, representing a living flame of prayer, will burn at every service for the duration of the war, the pastor announced. Special prayers will be offered for these persons each Sunday.

These two articles are to remind the congregation to keep a continuous chain of prayers of intercession for the nation, for themselves and for those in the service, the Rev. Mr. Creager said.

The first list consisted of more than forty men and women of the congregation, who are in the service. Additional names may be presented by anyone whether a member of the congregation or not, who wishes prayers offered for a service man or woman. The pastor will read the names at a special ceremony each Sunday.

Concluding the dedication service, the choir sang the prayer stanza of "America."

Following the informal farewells refreshments will be served, with Miss Elizabeth L. Lowndes and Mrs. George G. Young pouring the tea.

MEAT LOAF NESTS: For an Easter touch.

Georgia Woman Seeks Names of Veterans

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
AP Food Editor

The names and addresses of three men who served with Company E, Thirty-fifth Engineers in the First World War, are sought by Mrs. Harry W. Metz, of Route 3, Donaldsonville, Ga., in a letter received yesterday by Thomas F. Conlon, chairman of the Mountain District Veterans Association.

Any war veteran having such information available is requested to contact Conlon at his office in the Liberty Trust building.

Such information likely will be valuable in a claim for compensation, Conlon said.

Easter has always been a time of promise and hope to a weary world. We certainly don't want to give up its celebration in time of war. Still, that celebration must be a simple one to fit our sober thoughts—and our ration points!

My suggestion is that you try to plan an Easter meal which will require no foods that you wouldn't ordinarily have and yet will look really Easter.

For decoration you can have hard-cooked eggs, which are so much fun for children to dye or otherwise decorate. Eggs are plentiful and there's no waste here because they can be eaten for supper, either as is, or shelled, sliced and creamed.

Even though Easter is early this year, you might add the first festive note by starting dinner with a cold soup, which is surely a sign of spring and better things coming. Though it's April, why not jump the gun and have:

May Day Soup

1 tablespoon gelatin 1 1/2 cups boiling water
1/4 cup cold water 1/4 cup unweeened bouillon cubes
2 chicken bouillon cubes

Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water and pour over the softened gelatin. Stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool and add pineapple juice. Chill. Serve with salt crackers spread with cream cheese. (Orange juice or other fruit juice may be substituted for the pineapple.)

The picture accompanying this article shows a very simple main course, made festive simply by its form.

Meat Loaf Nests

1 egg 1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt 1 pound ground beef
1/4 teaspoon pepper 1/4 pound ground pork or sausage
1 cup fortified whole-wheat flakes

Beat egg slightly. Add salt, pepper and milk. Crush whole-wheat flakes into fine crumbs; add crumbs and meat to first mixture and blend thoroughly. Press lightly into greased custard cups or muffin pans, shaping to form a nest. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees) about twenty-five minutes. Serve nests filled with creamed carrots as illustrated, or with other creamed vegetables. Green peas cooked with tiny onions are particularly effective.

You can add an extra gala touch at this meal by serving quick-frozen asparagus which, even though we can get it the year round now, spells spring to most of us. And be sure, of course, to serve potatoes. They're needed for balance, they're so plentiful that we're being begged to use, not waste them, and sprinkled with finely chopped parsley, they add another spring-like note.

For dessert, I'd suggest that you serve what's known at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York as "Eggs à la Neige." Much to the surprise of adventurous souls who order it without knowing what to expect, it turns out to be dear old Floating Island—with only the added touch of a few strawberries bobbing amongst the meringue islands. At the Ritz, by the way, the islands are prepared by beating egg whites and sugar in the usual fashion—and then poaching them by the spoonful in boiling milk. The result is indeed company fare, and so simple to do. You need only a few strawberries for this treat, so even though they're scarce you can probably afford them for Easter.

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, W. Va., April 8.—Reardon Cuppett, county superintendent of schools, announced today that according to the state teacher allotment, Tucker county will have ten teachers next year. There are now 119 teachers in the county.

The allotment is based upon the attendance of the first five months of the school year.

The total of bonds and stamps for the month of March purchased by both the students and teachers, was $2,321.45. Cuppett further announced, Davis high school led the list with a total of $662.65 and Thomas high ranks second with a total of $330.30.

Jap Booby Traps Wired to Bodies

Dead Americans Used as Decoys

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—The Japanese are making booby traps of dead American soldiers by wiring explosives to the bodies of the fallen doughboys, an army officer disclosed here upon his return from the fighting in New Guinea.

Col. J. Sladen Bradley, Mt. Pleasant, N. C., a member of the general staff corps, reported that at Sador soldiers mopping up enemy positions found American dead with their rifles strapped to them and explosives attached to the bodies.

Apparently the rifles were to deceive advancing American troops into believing that the dead soldier had fallen in action and had not been touched by the enemy.

Numerous wires and threads strung close to the ground where they would be tripped by a foot and attached to explosives also were encountered by troops in the Sador area, Bradley said.

Reach Agreement On Aviation Control

LONDON, Saturday, April 8 (AP)—Concluding a four-day discussion of postwar civil aviation, representatives of the United States and Great Britain announced early today that the two governments had agreed that international control should govern a considerable field of technical matters.

The meetings were attended by Adolf A. Berle, Jr., assistant United States secretary of state, Dr. Edward Warner, vice chairman of the United States Civil Aeronautics Board, and Lord Beaverbrook, lord privy seal as well as technical advisers. They produced enough agreement to "justify the expectation that final dispositions can be reached at an international conference," a statement concerning the meetings said.

Lieut. Robert S. Izat, Navigator on Flying Fortress, Is Honored

LONA CONING, April 7.—Lieut. Robert S. Izat, navigator on the "Princess Pat," a B-17 Flying Fortress of the Eighth Army Air Force in England, has been awarded an Oak Leaf cluster to wear on his Air Medal for "courage, coolness and skill" displayed while participating in a bombing mission over Germany.

Lieut. Izat, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Izat, East Main street, has completed twenty-five missions including some of the toughest air battles of the war at Brunswick, Munster, Schweinfurt, Emden, Gelsenkirchen and Kiel.

The Washington Herald recently carried the following article by Thomas R. Henry: "On the way to Brunswick the supercharger on his 'Princess Pat' failed to function and it was necessary to turn at Hanover and come out alone. A lone bomber is supposed to be 'easy meat' for German fighters if they can find it. In this case, however, some American fighters came to its rescue just as it was getting into trouble. Izat's craft was badly shot up over Munster and came back to England with a caved-in nose."

Lieut. Ted Hense of 2575 Highland avenue, Baltimore, and Lieut. Izat, members of heavy bomber combat crews, described the mysterious "pink flashes" sent out by German fighters in an article which appeared in the Washington Herald also.

Lieut. Izat, who was employed at the Celanese plant for eight years, enlisted through the series of examinations given by the B. P. O. E. in Cumberland. He received six months of pre-flight training at Santa Ana, Cal., and then transferred to Boeswell, N. M., where he was awarded his gold bar and second lieutenant's commission.

"Bob" was promoted to first lieutenant last month at a flying field in England.

Mrs. Agnes (Cavanaugh) O'Rourke, 38, wife of John L. O'Rourke, East Main street, died this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Miners hospital, Frostburg, where she has been a patient for one week.

A native of Midland, she was a daughter of Patrick J. Cavanaugh and the late Agnes Hogan Cavanaugh.

She was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Midland, and St. Mary's Catholic church, Lonaconing, and of the Blessed Virgin Sodality of St. Joseph's church.

Besides her husband and her father, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. William E. Coon, Akron, and Mrs. George B. Allen, Midland, and two brothers, Edmund R. Akron, and Patrick A. Midland.

Kirke L. Simpson Says:

Start of Greatest Military Show In History Depends upon Weather

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

British censorship appears significantly indulgent toward reports from American correspondents in that country playing up the immensity of Anglo-American second-front invasion assaults on the European continent.

It has passed accounts stating that "D day" has been set to the hour, stories about the brigade of news, radio and picture men from this side of the Atlantic to witness and report invasion proceedings, even the rather startling remarks of Lt. General Omar N. Bradley, American ground force commander in Britain, playing down the probable invasion casualty cost.

Bad on Nazi Nerves

A possible explanation is the hoped for effect of all this on Nazi nerves. That certainly has had something to do with Allied publicity policy in connection with invasion preparations in Britain. There has been a discernible official effort throughout the long period of preparation to make it clear to everybody, including the Germans, that this is to be the greatest military

"show" in history, to borrow Bradley's term for it, when it comes.

Bradley was making a fighting speech to his officers.

"When the time comes you will be surprised by the naval gunfire and air power we have," he said.

The general characterized reports of possible 90 per cent casualties as "tommyrot" and noted there was only an average loss in Tunisia of "three or four men to 1,000." That seems to dissent to the tone of many official utterances in this country foreboding very heavy losses. If Allied staffers have any official estimate of the probabilities, they keep it to themselves.

Day Not Believed Set

At this distance, however, the assumption that the day and hour for any or all of the contemplated invasion moves has been or could be set long in advance seems dubious. Too much depends upon the highly unpredictable weather in the North Sea and English channel.

In any case, that decision must be up to the top commander of the invading forces, General Eisenhower. Higher authority in the United States and in Britain could set a period within which preparations for the launching of the operations were to be completed and the actual movement begin. It would seem essential, however, that the commander-in-chief in the field and

It is a reasonable guess that the weather forecasting element of his forces has been a prime concern with Eisenhower since he took over.

And it is more than possible that nobody as of today knows the actual day or hour of the first rush because it probably will be set at the last moment with relation to the weather outlook.

Second Pearl Harbor Attack Impossible, Says Gov. Stainback

HONOLULU, April 7 (AP)—Governor Ingram M. Stainback of Hawaii testified in federal court today that "there is no possibility of a repetition of what happened here Dec. 7, 1941."

His testimony, referring to the Pearl Harbor attack that started the war, was given as a witness for Lloyd C. Duncan, 25, civilian navy yard worker, seeking freedom from a jail sentence in a habeas corpus test case. Duncan was sentenced to six months by a military provost court for assaulting two marine sentries at Pearl Harbor.

On cross-examination, Governor Stainback asserted his belief that the territory no longer is in imminent danger of invasion, as top-ranking military commanders have declared.

and Ginny Simms in technicolor, plus the music of Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra, "Broadway Rhythm" is a must-see on your movie list.

It's the story of a theatrical family that has attained success and the impact on them of the presence of a very lovely Hollywood movie star. It's gay and colorful and the story has several new twists.

Charles Winninger, clown and toots a trombone in a duet with Dorsey, George Murphy sings and dances, Ginny Simms raises her glorious voice in song, Lena Horne dances a spectacular boogie-woogie number and sings two songs, Hazel Scott does things to a piano, and Dean Murphy and the Ross sisters contribute outstanding moments to the film.

Gay Musical Opens At Embassy Tomorrow

A gay musical photographed in glorious technicolor, an appealing love story of an army private in love with the colonel's daughter, topped off with one of the greatest displays of screen stars ever before filmed in one picture make Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Thousands Cheer", which opens tomorrow at the Embassy theater, one of the must-sees of the year.

Kathryn Grayson is seen as a charming young concert singer who leaves her job as soloist with Jose Iturbi's orchestra to do morale work in her father's camp. John Boles does credit to the role of Colonel Jones as the bewildered father suddenly meeting with a charming grown-up daughter. Many of his difficulties stem from the fact that Gene Kelly, the camp's problem boy solves his difficulties when he and Kathryn fall in love, much to the despair of Boles and mother, Mary Astor.

Jose Iturbi makes his first appearance on the screen in technicolor and proves himself an accomplished actor as well as musician.

Since World War I, there have been more than 300,000 admissions of tuberculosis veterans in hospitals of the Veterans' Administration, or to other government, state or civil institutions.

Leaves Large Sum For Care of Horses

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—The will of Edward Pennington Pearson, just filed for probate, stipulated that part of his fortune of more than $800,000 be used to provide humane treatment for "the horses which I have been accustomed to ride."

Pearson, who died March 20

rected that the horses be "exposed, ridden and enjoyed regularly such equestrians as the estate might permit, without charge to riders."

Four-H Club boys and girls raised 11,900,000 chickens in 1943.

Switzerland Protests
Bombing by Americans

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Charles Brugmann, Swiss minister here, today presented Secretary of State Hull oral representations over the accidental American bombing of the Swiss city of Schaffhausen.

American Liberator bombers carrying out a sweep against the Reich accidentally dropped explosives and incendiaries on the Swiss city April 1.

The Swiss minister asked an explanation of the bombing, requested that measures be taken to prevent recurrence of such incidents, and accepted Hull's promise that the United States would indemnify the Swiss government and Swiss citizens for the accident.

Local 1874 Joins Labor Unity Group

Conference Urges Action On Better Playground Facilities Here

Local 1874, TWU, applied for membership in the Maryland Labor Union Conference at a meeting of the group Thursday evening in Teamsters hall, and became the first CIO local to have a direct voice in the activities of the group.

Only two other locals (A. F. of L.) are directly affiliated with the group, Horace B. Davis, CIO field representative asserted. They are locals of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen and the International Association of Machinists.

Represents 15,000
The conference, representing 15,000 odd members, previously represented the CIO through the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council, CIO; and included the Allegheny Trade and Labor Council of the A. F. of L.; the Railway Brotherhoods and independent unions of this area.

The conference referred to the legislative committee for recommendation the application of Willis R. Jones who opposes Senator Millard Tydings as senator on the Democratic ticket. The group urged its affiliates to listen to Jones' broadcast Monday evening over WTBO.

Urges Better Playgrounds
The labor union group discussed the problem of securing more and better playground facilities and urged action on efforts toward securing the best possible playgrounds for the youth of Cumberland.

Home Gardening Course Expands

Vegetable Class Will Be Started Next Tuesday in Midland

James H. House, coordinator of food production war training, announced yesterday that a home vegetable gardening class will be opened in the Red Men's building, Midland, Tuesday, April 11, at 7:30 p. m., and will operate on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., for a period of five weeks.

Home vegetable gardening is a part of the food production war training program and adult education program sponsored by the Allegheny County Board of Education and the vocational department of the State of Maryland.

All persons in the Midland section interested in the production of vegetable crops and plants are invited to attend the classes. There is no registration fee nor any other obligation for those taking the course. Literature will be available as a basis for discussion on vegetable gardening and related interests.

Mrs. Hilda M. Phillips will be the instructor.
Sixty-five families were represented at similar courses recently completed in Frostburg, Lonaconing and the Geoplat school, this city. The largest turnout was in Lonaconing where thirty persons attended the classes. The course comprises ten lessons.

IN SENIOR PLAY—Maryjane Edwards gives a realistic performance as charming, self-sufficient Flora Manning in "Murder Mansion," the mystery-comedy to be presented by the senior class of Fort Hill high school, April 28. A veteran of the Fort Hill stage, having had major roles in "Spring Fever" and "Mr. and Mrs. America," and an active part in the Thespian Troupe, the Fort Hill Players and the Choral Speaking Choir, Maryjane's performance enhances the near professional quality of the production, which is being staged by Miss Kathleen Cumbee.

A dinner meeting will be held next month at a date to be determined by the new officers.

Mrs. Mary Little, 72, Route 2, Williams road, was admitted to Memorial hospital at 9 p. m. yesterday for treatment of a fracture of her left arm, suffered in a fall from the porch at her home.

Donald McDonald, 53, Romney, W. Va., was admitted to Memorial hospital at 3 p. m. yesterday for treatment of a fracture of his right foot, suffered when it was run over by a tractor.

Parade of Easter Finery May Take Place in Rain

The weatherman last night held out very little hope for a bright and sunny Easter so any parading of new spring finery will be done at the risk of having the sprinkling duds damped by rainfall—if the weatherman's prediction comes true.

He hit it on the nose yesterday, calling for rain beginning in this section tonight. It did, about 9:30 p. m., and at midnight it was still coming down without a sign of a lull.

For today the weather man says it will be occasional rain with mild temperatures, and for Sunday he comes up with a forecast of partly cloudy and continued mild temperatures. At least he doesn't predict snow.

Dr. George E. Bennett Will See Record Number At Orthopedic Clinic

Appointments for the spring orthopedic clinic to be conducted by Dr. George E. Bennett, Baltimore surgeon, April 21 and 22, at the headquarters of the Allegheny County League for Crippled Children, now total 200, the largest number for a single clinic since the league was founded here, according to Miss Vivian Lambert, secretary.

Listed among those who have made appointments are twenty-five new cases.

Dr. Bennett's clinic hours will be from 9 to 11:30 a. m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Friday, and 9 to 11:30 a. m. on Saturday.

Session To Be Held Monday; Campaign Total Reaches $72,459.27

Officials of the current Red Cross campaign to raise $105,000 in this county have scheduled a report meeting for 12:15 p. m. Monday in the vestry rooms of Ber Chayim temple. The action was taken at a meeting held at 4 p. m. yesterday to outline plans to raise additional funds and put the drive over the top.

Earlier this week campaign leaders had announced no further report meetings would be held, but yesterday they decided that another one is essential.

Every worker in the drive will be asked to bring in everything they have solicited, even if it's only a dime, at Monday's meeting, leaders said, so that an accurate total of all funds raised up to that time can be ascertained and it will not be necessary to estimate the ultimate outcome of the drive.

May Meet Wednesday
After complete reports are turned in Monday, workers will be given until Wednesday, now set as the official closing of the drive, to raise any funds needed to put the drive across. Whether or not another report meeting will be held Wednesday will be determined at the session on Monday.

In addition to reports by workers in Cumberland, officials added, all county leaders have been contacted and asked to make complete reports at the meeting Monday.

In the meantime, a radio program has been scheduled for Sunday and will be broadcast from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m. Former Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, general campaign chairman, Attorney General William C. Walsh and Attorney William A. Gunter will participate in the program.

Total Reaches $72,459.27
Prior to yesterday's meeting, leaders said total contributions in the countywide campaign now have reached $72,459.27, including the first report from the National Firms section of $1,058.

Also reported yesterday were $306.16 from Midland, $169.23 from Little Orleans and $78.03 from Ellerslie. Leaders said, however, that all of these figures are incomplete and that additional returns are expected shortly.

Midland, in addition to the $506.16, will receive an allocation from the county commissioners of $77.03. Mrs. Ed Smith, chairman of the collection, said she is confident that still more funds will be turned in at Midland.

Of the funds received to date, drive officials said yesterday that $10 has been contributed to it by Lieut. Eugene T. Fleischhauer, 419 Columbia street, now confined to a German prison camp after being shot down over the Mediterranean sea on September 4, 1943.

Encloses Message
Lieut. Fleischhauer's mother, Mrs. Jennie Starke Fleischhauer, made the contribution for him from his personal funds and sent a message to the Red Cross which, she said, she hopes "might cause others who have not yet sent in their contributions to come forward with them at once."

Mrs. Fleischhauer wrote that she is "amazed when I see so many windows without a symbol of the Red Cross. Perhaps the occupants of these homes do not have a son or a daughter in the service of our great country and cannot realize the importance of contributing to this grand and noble organization whose purpose is to render help and give comfort to all mankind."

"I am copying a portion of a letter I have just received from my son. He asked me to 'convey my thanks to the Red Cross when you contact them regarding your letters and Red Cross parcels to me. And, above all, don't worry about me because I am really being treated well.'"

Mrs. Fleischhauer pointed out that she and all the members of her family have given to the Red Cross and she adds that "I even bought a big card for my son who is a prisoner of the Germans, and I feel sure he will treasure this when he comes back to his home and sees Old Glory still flying over the 'land of the free and the home of the brave.'"

Cpl. McCabe Returns from Battles With Decorations for Gallantry

Oldtown Man Was in Heavy Fighting in Africa, Sicily and Italy

Entitled to wear the Silver Star decoration for gallantry in action, Cpl. William J. McCabe, of Oldtown, has returned home after sixteen months of leading a squad of infantry soldiers through heavy fighting in North Africa, Sicily and Italy, including action on the Anzio beachhead.

In addition to his Silver Star, Cpl. McCabe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. McCabe, of Oldtown, and Paw Paw, W. Va., is also the wearer of the Purple Heart decoration for wounds suffered in Sicily.

Forced Germans Back
Cpl. McCabe served throughout these campaigns with the famous Third Infantry Division which fought for sixty-four consecutive days in pushing the Germans back up the Italian peninsula north of Salerno up to and across the Volturno river.

The decorations awarded to Cpl. McCabe were won at Agrigento, Sicily, where he volunteered to go back under enemy shell fire and rescue a member of his squad who had been wounded. It was at this time that he himself was wounded.

For all of his heroism on this occasion, Cpl. McCabe reports that a much more dramatic experience came the way of his squad and himself in Italy. On this occasion, while out on patrol one night, the squad of infantrymen stumbled upon a German outpost. Although challenged by the German sentries, they succeeded in escaping, but not without noting the enemy outpost positions.

Take 35 Prisoners
As soon as daylight permitted, Cpl. McCabe, returning with his squad, stealthily maneuvered his men into a position on the enemy outpost's flank, surprised the enemy, and took thirty-five prisoners.

Another time while in a front line position on the Anzio beachhead, Cpl. McCabe's squad was completely surrounded by enemy. Only by alternately crawling and fighting did the squad win its way back to the main body of infantry troops.

Leaders Needed For 1944 Victory Garden Effort

McHenry Says County Goal Is 12,000 or More Gardens

To meet the county goal of 12,000 or more victory gardens in 1944, more garden leaders are needed—men and women who know something about gardening, regardless of what organization or neighborhood they represent, Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent, said yesterday.

These leaders, he explained, find ground for gardens, show people how to prepare it, hold garden meetings or schools, help make garden plans and in every way possible help old and new victory gardeners achieve maximum results.

City officials, newspapers, extension agents, school authorities and others obviously cannot make all of the individual contacts that may be desirable in working with thousands of individuals who may seek help and information on many different problems, McHenry said.

Group Work Urged
He added that this is why organizations and neighborhoods should work on the group basis with one or more leaders for the group if the maximum service is to be given by the educational agencies.

One of the most amazing phases of the victory garden movement in the past two years has been the spontaneous spirit which generated the project from state to state, community to community, McHenry said.

Training victory gardeners, he said, represents the greatest single voluntary movement on the home front since the war began.

In Allegheny county, the "urge" that people had to "help" in the war effort by growing victory gardens was harnessed and organized by different groups in different localities, McHenry said, adding that in many localities the guidance came from public school authorities, city officials, 4-H boys' and girls' clubs, parent-teacher associations, home-makers clubs and almost all other types of civilian organizations.

National radio announcements also helped in the stimulation, according to McHenry, who said that various government agencies as well as state and county extension agents supplied a good deal of information and suggestions on what to grow and how to grow it.

Persistence Credited
Whatever success there was in the county, however, he said, has been due to local initiative and individual enthusiasm and the persistence of the people themselves in "sticking to the thing through the most trying drouth we have had in the county for many years."

In the light of experience gained in two years of success, McHenry suggested that leaders work with existing organizations in planning victory garden work for 1944. By working with and through organizations, he related, the least possible time and effort will be expended in getting the largest possible number of gardeners into the movement. Then, too, he added, leaders are able to put the most time on helping others to plan, plant and harvest.
